3. INTRODUCTION

In today's rapidly evolving digital landscape, organisations cannot afford to lose time, money, reputation, or data integrity due to cybersecurity incidents. For the Trans-Caledon Tunnel Authority (TCTA), such incidents could result in immeasurable consequences—ranging from production outages due to malware (e.g., worms, ransomware, viruses), to website defacement, or the loss or theft of sensitive customer, operational or financial data. These risks underscore the need for proactive, continuous security assessment to guard against known and unknown vulnerabilities and exploits within the TCTA ICT ecosystem.

Vulnerability Management and Adversarial Testing Services form a critical part of TCTA's broader cyber defence strategy. These services enable the organisation to identify weaknesses, evaluate the effectiveness of existing controls, and strengthen resilience before threats materialise. By simulating real-world adversarial behaviours, these assessments allow TCTA to validate detection and response capabilities, harden critical assets, and strengthen overall security posture.

As part of its risk management and compliance obligations—including alignment to frameworks such as the NIST Cybersecurity Framework, ISO/IEC 27001, and applicable statutory requirements (e.g., POPIA, PFMA)—TCTA seeks to engage a qualified and experienced service provider to conduct a comprehensive Red Team Assessment. This will include:

- External and internal penetration testing of TCTA's network and infrastructure.
- Web application security testing to evaluate critical application layers.
- Physical and social engineering assessments to test personnel awareness, physical access controls, and human-centric vulnerabilities.
- Onsite technical assessments where required, aligned to real-world threat actor tactics, techniques, and procedures (TTPs) based on MITRE ATT&CK.

The outcomes of this assessment will inform executive decision-making, feed into the enterprise risk register, and guide the prioritisation of security investments as part of TCTA's ongoing cybersecurity improvement roadmap.

4. SCOPE OF WORK

4.1. DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF GOODS/SERVICES

TCTA seeks to appoint a qualified and experienced service provider to conduct a comprehensive Red Team Assessment aimed at identifying, validating, and ethically exploiting security vulnerabilities across its internal and external environments. The objective is to simulate real-world cyberattacks that test not only technical controls but also personnel awareness and organizational processes.

Vulnerabilities discovered during the assessment must be subjected to controlled exploitation, adhering to ethical hacking methodologies. The outcomes will enable TCTA to assess risk exposure accurately, implement targeted remediation strategies, and enhance its overall cyber resilience posture.

4.1.1. SCOPE OF WORK

The appointed service provider will be required to plan, execute, and report on a Red Team Assessment across selected critical systems, network zones, personnel targets, and digital assets.

The primary objectives include:

- Assessing TCTA's ability to detect, prevent, and respond to advanced persistent threats (APTs), insider risks, and human-engineered exploits.
- Identifying vulnerabilities across infrastructure, web applications, and user behaviour.
- Simulating multi-vector attacks to evaluate TCTA's layered defence mechanisms.
- Providing technical and executive reporting with remediation guidance.
- Supporting integration of assessment findings into TCTA's risk register, security roadmap, and incident response improvements.

4.1.2. THE RED TEAM ASSESSMENT INDEPENDENT PHASES

The Red Team Assessment must be structured into the following five distinct and independent phases:

- External Network Penetration Testing

Simulate an external adversary attempting to gain unauthorized access to TCTA's publicly exposed systems and services. This includes reconnaissance, vulnerability exploitation, and lateral movement attempts from the internet-facing perimeter.

- Internal Network Penetration Testing (Onsite)

Conduct testing from within the TCTA network to simulate insider threats or compromised devices. This phase will assess domain privilege escalation, lateral movement, data exfiltration risk, and segmentation effectiveness.

- Web Application Security Testing

Evaluate the security of TCTA's critical web applications against OWASP Top 10 and business logic vulnerabilities, including injection attacks, broken authentication, sensitive data exposure, and session hijacking.

- Physical and Social Engineering Assessment

Test the human and physical security layers by simulating pretexting, tailgating, phishing (email, voice, SMS), and on-site access attempts to bypass security controls and gain unauthorized access to facilities or systems.

- Re-Testing & Validation (Post-Remediation)

Verify that all findings—especially Critical/High/Medium—have been remediated and that attack paths are closed without regression. Activities include targeted retests of previously exploited vectors, configuration/patch verification, re-execution of relevant attack chains, and re-runs of phishing/physical tests where controls changed.

4.1.2.1. External Network Penetration Test

An external penetration test shall be conducted on internet-facing systems and infrastructure that are publicly accessible. This phase aims to simulate an unauthenticated, black-box attack by a real-world external adversary to evaluate TCTA's perimeter security, threat exposure, and detection capabilities.

Each testing phase must be executed as an independent and auditable module within the overall Red Team Assessment scope.

Key Conditions & Requirements:

- Controlled Exploitation:

Identified vulnerabilities may be exploited to demonstrate their impact, with the explicit exception of Denial of Service (DoS/DDoS) attacks. Exploitation may include controlled social engineering (e.g., phishing simulations), subject to prior approval and target list validation by TCTA.

- Prohibited Attack Types (unless explicitly authorised):

- Automated vulnerability spraying
- Password brute-force attempts
- High-impact traffic floods or system stress tests

- Exploits targeting production-critical systems
- Real-Time Notification Obligations:
The vendor must immediately notify TCTA if any test results in potential or actual:
 - Service degradation
 - Access to sensitive information
 - Bypass of security controls
 - Potential business disruption
- Confidentiality & non-disclosure:
Both parties shall sign a Mutual Non-Disclosure Agreement (MNDA) prior to assessment. This agreement will safeguard:
 - Internal vulnerabilities discovered
 - Tools, scripts, or payloads used
 - Assessment reports, logs, and artifacts
- Critical Risk Reporting:
Any vulnerability or misconfiguration discovered that poses an imminent threat to TCTA's business operations or critical systems must be reported to the designated TCTA cybersecurity representative within 24 hours of discovery.
- Test Schedule & Whitelisting:
The penetration test must be performed within agreed maintenance windows, and source IPs of the testing team must be pre-approved and whitelisted to avoid triggering unplanned incident responses or blocks.

4.1.2.2. Web Application Penetration Test

Objective

Provide an independent assurance of the security posture of TCTA web applications and determine whether exploitable vulnerabilities and business-logic weaknesses exist.

Scope & Assumptions

- Testing must cover all exposed interfaces for each in-scope application—as well as the supporting stack (OS, application server, database) insofar as it directly affects the application.
- Assessments must follow the OWASP Testing Guide and consider the OWASP Top 10 categories and relevant business-logic risks.

Method

A structured methodology will be applied:

1. Reconnaissance & Enumeration – discover endpoints, roles, and technology stack.

2. Vulnerability Analysis – identify misconfigurations and weaknesses.
3. Exploitation & Post-Exploitation (safe & controlled) – validate impact and abuse paths (e.g., authZ bypass, data exposure, session hijacking).

Exclusions

- Denial-of-Service (DoS)/stress testing is out of scope unless explicitly approved in writing.
- Testing remains non-destructive and respects data-handling and privacy requirements.

Deliverables

- Prioritized findings with severity (e.g., CVSS/Critical-High-Medium-Low), affected assets, proof-of-concept evidence, reproducible steps, business impact, and clear remediation guidance.
- An executive summary for management, a detailed technical report, and an attestation letter.

4.1.2.3. Network Security Assessment (onsite)

Independently evaluate the security of TCTA's internal network, validate segmentation and access controls, and identify attack paths an adversary could use to move laterally and escalate privileges.

Approach (two phases)

1. Phase 1 – Unauthenticated/Untrusted User

Simulate an outsider inside the building (e.g., guest/rogue device) with no prior knowledge of the network. Activities include network discovery, service enumeration, misconfiguration testing, and attempts to access restricted segments.

2. Phase 2 – Low-Privilege Authenticated User

Simulate a standard domain user. Assess privilege escalation, credential harvesting, lateral movement, access to sensitive data, and effectiveness of network segmentation and endpoint controls.

Scope

- In-scope assets include servers, desktops/laptops, network devices (switches/routers/firewalls), wireless infrastructure, VPN/remote access, and monitoring/management platforms that directly affect security.
- Testing aligns to a safe, controlled penetration-style methodology and will be conducted at TCTA's corporate office (Centurion) during an agreed window.

Additional onsite components (as applicable/approved):

- Mobile device security (corporate/ BYOD configuration and policy enforcement).
- Application security checks for internally hosted services discovered during testing.
- Social-engineering/USB key-drop exercises to validate user and physical controls (opt-in, pre-approved).

4.1.2.4. Physical Security Assessment

A physical security assessment will be performed to identify strengths and weaknesses in TCTA's physical security controls. This assessment should incorporate social engineering techniques to attempt unauthorized access to restricted areas as well as gain physical access to network jacks in TCTA's corporate offices.
